

Flat Callum

Written and Illustrated by Callum W.

Today, I turned flat. My little brother stacked heavy toys on me. It was so heavy that I turned flat! Getting out of the heavy pile was hard because my feet were flat. I had to slide out. The only way I got to mom and dad was to move like a seal.

Being flat gave me some advantages. My little brother got a new, cool toy. That night, I took it out of his room by sliding under the door. My mom and dad nearly caught me, but I hid in a frame so they thought I was a picture. When they left the hallway, I snuck back to my room.

On a hot day, we went to the beach. A VERY heavy guy didn't notice me and sat on me. Once he got off to play, a strong gust of wind came and sent me flying towards the ocean!

Flat Callum the amazing voyage

Here is a sneak peek at the sequel!

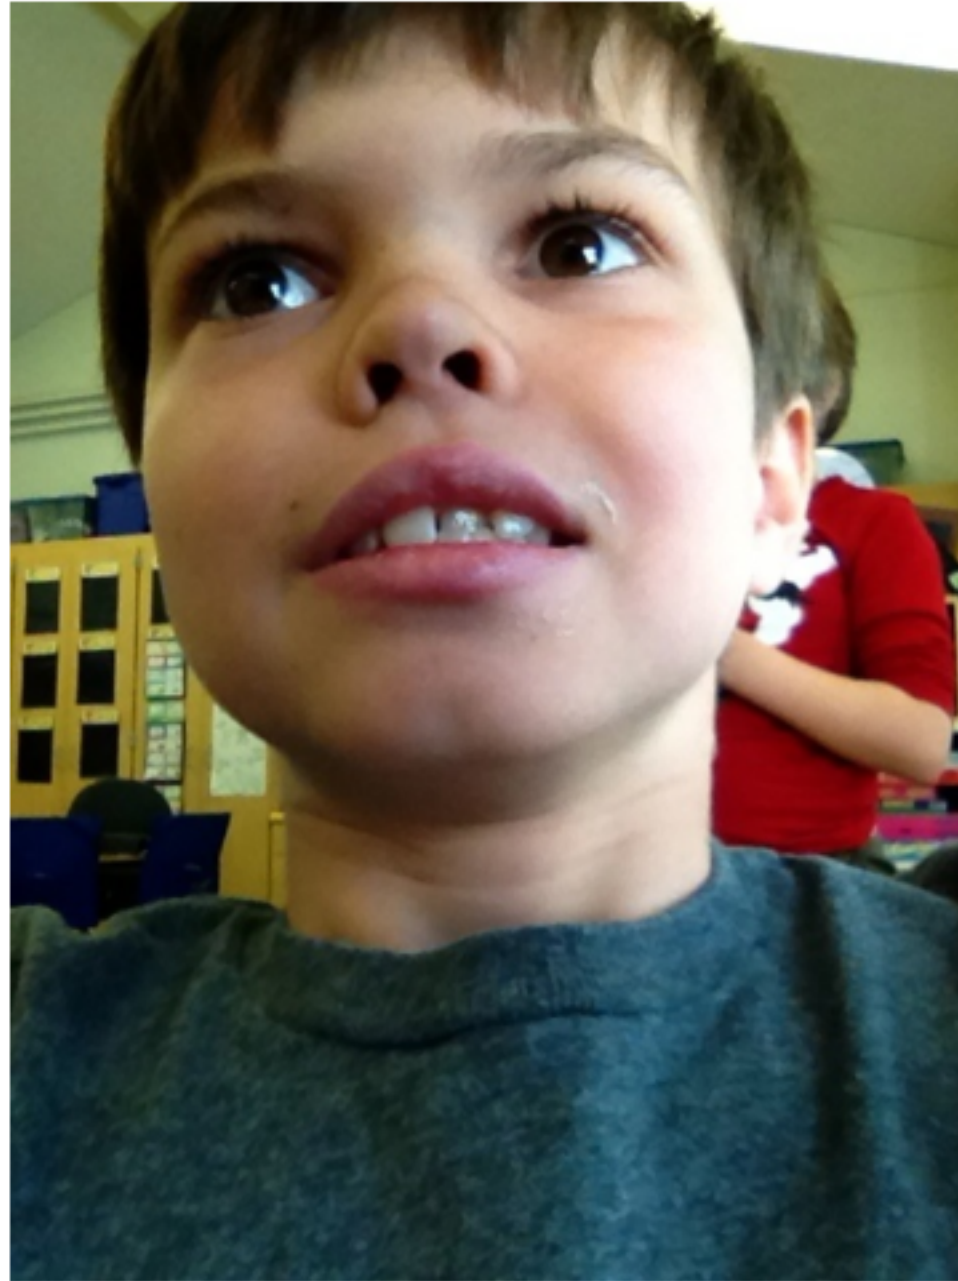

Chapter

I am Flat Callum, lost in the ocean. When I landed in the sea, a stray dog came and tried to save me. But, he is a dog. Instead he wound up trying to swim back.

Then, I dove underwater. There was a GIANT octopus. Luckily, the octopus's tentacles were slippery, so I didn't have to worry. The dog was only a little behind. Then, I saw my ride home. A big, Giant, ENORMOUS submarine.
